

FORMER CHESTER BOY STARS FOR SHO' MEN

CHESTERTOWN, Md., April 6— Ellis Dwyer, former Chester High football star and recently elected as captain of the 1935 grid squad at Washington College, is about ready to add new laurels to those already gained in athletics at the Eastern Shore of Maryland college. Tomorrow he will be at coverpoint on the Washington lacrosse squad when that team opens its season with Johns Hopkins.

Dwyer is one of a trio of newcomers, all in defense positions, on the Washington ten this season. And much of the success of the Shore stickmen will depend upon the play of the Chester boy and the other inexperienced performers.

Dick Gamber, of Upper Darby, the captain of the Washington football team last fall, is one of the veterans on the lacrosse ten and one of the best defense players the Shore college has ever developed. He hails from Darby, where he formerly starred on the Blue and White teams.
