The box lacrosse season will get underway tomorrow evening at 7 p. m., with Swarthmore meeting a picked team from the Philadelphia Lacrosse Club and the Chester Comets.

Porter Waite is taking an active part in the box lacrosse sport once again after being dangerously ill for a long time. The popular Porter founded the game in this section several years ago and he was missed last year. He will be unable to play, however, and will have to share the enthusiasm from the sidelines.

Avery Blake, coach of the Swarthmore College team and also mentor of the Southern All Star team which lost out 6 to 5 in the dream game at Baltimore, is to be the director at a camp at Avalon, N. J., this summer and will not be able to play regularly.

Al Blair, Penn State product from Media, is trying to get enough players to have a Media team to enter the league this year. The other three teams will be back with Perc Belfield heading the Swarthmore Indians, Marshall Gatchell as director of the Comets, and Dud Perkins, Swarthmore '37, guiding the Philly Lacrosse Club, in place of Jake Edel who was transferred to New York recently.
